

Search for Census Bureau Information Quickly and Easily!

Now there's no need to know about Census Bureau programs or terminology when looking for information on-line. Search the Census Bureau's web site for information in three ways:

1. Use the Search feature — now powered by Google™ — on the blue side-bar and enter a keyword.
2. Browse frequently asked questions and answers at our Question and Answer Center by choosing your topic of interest and hitting "Go".
3. Go to Subjects A-Z at the top of the blue side-bar and click on the first letter of your topic of interest.

No matter which method you use to search the Census Bureau's web site, you'll find accurate answers to frequently asked questions such as:

- Where do I go to get international trade statistics?
- Does the Census Bureau have genealogical information?
- What correlation is there between the new North American Industrial Classification System (NAICS) and the old SIC codes?
- How is the information used from Census 2000?
- What does the Census Bureau do when it is not counting the population?
- What materials do you have for school teachers and children?

Order Directly From Our On-Line Product Catalog

The Census Bureau's electronic catalog is "open for business" 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. It provides dynamic descriptions of subject content and geographic coverage, prices, and ordering information. Our products and services include:

- CD-ROMs and DVDs
- Print and Cyber Publications and Reports
- Maps
- Population Certification Services

Ordering materials or services on our Web site is fast and easy. Go to www.census.gov. We accept VISA, MasterCard, Discover, and American Express.
